

Philosophy of Religion

reason, faith, belief and doubt

George Matthews, Pennsylvania College of Technology

2020

Perspectives on religion

From inside: what religious beliefs or practices should I adhere to as someone aware of the mysteries of life and death?

From outside:

- Religious studies: what are the practices, beliefs and histories of the many different world religions?
- Sociology: how do religions work as institutions expressing shared values and social meaning?
- Psychology: what is going on in the mind when people have religious beliefs and engage in religious practices?
- Philosophy: can religious beliefs be rationally justified?

Philosophy of religion

metaphysics

epistemology

value theory

- Does God exist?
- If so, in what form? As a supernatural being, as identical with nature, as many disembodied spirits?
- What does the existence of evil imply about the existence or nature of God or the gods?

Philosophy of religion

metaphysics

epistemology

value theory

- Can we know whether or not a God or gods exist?
- Are appeals to faith to justify religious belief legitimate?

Philosophy of religion

metaphysics

epistemology

value theory

- What is the relation between religion and morality?
- Is religion a purely private matter or does it have any role to play in public life?

Does God exist?

YES

Theism is the general term for the belief in the existence of a God or gods.

NO

MAYBE

- Monotheism: there is only one God, and that God is a being with "personhood," with thoughts, feelings, intentions, free will...
- Polytheism: there are multiple gods often with many different personalities.

Does God exist?

YES
NO
MAYBE

! Note that actual religions don't always clearly fit these definitions.

- Hinduism is polytheistic, but Krishna is often seen as the main "God" with many other divinities as Krishna's "avatars" or manifestations.

Does God exist?

YES
NO
MAYBE

Atheism refers to the denial of the existence of God, the gods or a supernatural realm of spirits.

Does God exist?

YES
NO
MAYBE

Agnosticism Is the view that we cannot tell for sure whether or not a God exists.

! This is more an epistemological than a metaphysical view -- it concerns what we can know and not what exists.

Classic arguments for theism

"God is evident in basic facts about the world of our experience."

Saint Thomas Aquinas 1225-1274

- Aquinas was an important figure in the history of the Catholic Church.

Classic arguments for theism

The Cosmological Argument

Saint Thomas Aquinas 1225-1274

Everything that exists has a cause.
 The universe as a whole exists.
 So the universe as a whole has a cause -- God.

Classic arguments for theism

"Reason alone can show us that God must exist."

Saint Anselm 1033-1101

- Anselm was an early Medieval philosopher convinced of the power of human reason to make sense of things.

Classic arguments for theism

The Ontological Argument

Saint Anselm
1033-1101

We can imagine the existence of a perfect being.
But if such a being did not exist it would lack something and so be less than perfect.
Thus a perfect being must exist – God.

- Something seems fishy here, but it is hard to see what.

Classic arguments for theism

"The hand of God is visible in the complexity of the natural world."

William Paley
1743-1805

- William Paley was an Anglican minister whose "natural theology" was taken to be the best explanation for biological complexity until Darwin challenged it.

Classic arguments for theism

Paley's Watch

William Paley
1743-1805

If you found a watch on the beach you'd be right to think it was not a product of chance but of design.
The organisms we "find" in nature are even more complex than a watch.
Thus a designer powerful enough to have designed biological organisms must exist – God.

Faith and the limits of reason

- None of these arguments seem so convincing to modern readers.
- Perhaps the Eighteenth Century philosopher Immanuel Kant was right that these kinds of big metaphysical questions cannot be answered in any definite way.
- What then about appealing to faith as the basis of religious belief?

Atheism and the problem of evil

"The existence of evil proves that God does not exist."

Epicurus
341-270 BCE

- Epicurus was a Greek philosopher who was skeptical of religion and advocated enjoying life to the fullest.

Atheism and the problem of evil

The Argument from Evil

Epicurus
341-270 BCE

If there is an all-powerful, all-knowing and all-good God, then evil should not exist.
But evil does exist.
Thus such a God does not exist.

- One typical response to this argument is to blame evil on human free will – we would be at fault then, and not God.

Belief and uncertainty

"We are all compelled to gamble."

Blaise Pascal
1623-1662

- Blaise Pascal was deeply religious, but also a mathematician and gambler who laid the foundations of probability theory.

Belief and uncertainty

Pascal's Wager

Blaise Pascal
1623-1662

There is no direct evidence for or against God's existence.

But the risk of not believing is far worse than that of believing.

Thus we should accept that God exists.

Buddhism

"What we believe about ultimate questions is less important than how we live."

Buddha
4th Century BCE

- Born Siddhartha Gautama, heir to a royal family, the founder of Buddhism sought a solution to the human suffering that inevitably arises from the impermanence of everything and our tendency to cling to things anyway.

Buddhism

The Parable of the Arrow

Buddha
4th Century BCE

Arguing about God, the universe and the soul is like arguing about who exactly just shot you with an arrow and why.

It's more important to pull the arrow out.

That's what religion too should be about, addressing our suffering.

Buddhism

The Parable of the Arrow

Buddha
4th Century BCE

Arguing about God, the universe and the soul is like arguing about who exactly just shot you with an arrow and why.

It's more important to pull the arrow out.

That's what religion too should be about, addressing our suffering.

- Is Buddhism even a religion or is it a philosophy, or agnostic spiritual and ethical system?

Find out more

Anselm and the Argument for God: Hank Green explores Anselm's ontological argument in this episode of The Crash Course.

Aquinas and the Cosmological Arguments: more from the Crash Course, this time dealing with St. Thomas Aquinas' "five ways" to establish the existence of God.

Religion Facts: this is a great website for exploring the many varieties of religion from around the world and throughout history.

Philosophy of Religion: a comprehensive overview of the major issues in this sub-field of philosophy from the Internet Encyclopedia of Philosophy.

Credits

Built with:

Rstudio

xarignan.html presentation framework

Photos by:

Peter H and Valter Cirillo at Pixabay download this presentation or print it editorial suggestions and comments: requires a (free) GitHub account.