reason, faith, belief and doubt

George Matthews, Pennsylvania College of Technology

2020

From inside: what religious beliefs or practices should I adhere to as someone aware of the mysteries of life and death?

From inside: what religious beliefs or practices should I adhere to as someone aware of the mysteries of life and death?

From inside: what religious beliefs or practices should I adhere to as someone aware of the mysteries of life and death?

From outside:

• Religious studies: what are the practices, beliefs and histories of the many different world religions?

From inside: what religious beliefs or practices should I adhere to as someone aware of the mysteries of life and death?

- Religious studies: what are the practices, beliefs and histories of the many different world religions?
- Sociology: how do religions work as institutions expressing shared values and social meaning?

From inside: what religious beliefs or practices should I adhere to as someone aware of the mysteries of life and death?

- Religious studies: what are the practices, beliefs and histories of the many different world religions?
- Sociology: how do religions work as institutions expressing shared values and social meaning?
- Psychology: what is going on in the mind when people have religious beliefs and engage in religious practices?

From inside: what religious beliefs or practices should I adhere to as someone aware of the mysteries of life and death?

- Religious studies: what are the practices, beliefs and histories of the many different world religions?
- Sociology: how do religions work as institutions expressing shared values and social meaning?
- Psychology: what is going on in the mind when people have religious beliefs and engage in religious practices?
- Philosophy: can religious beliefs be rationally justified?

What is religion anyway?

A set of beliefs about the nature of reality and the human place in reality. DOCTRINE.

An attitude towards life. SPIRITUALITY.

A set of practices. LITURGY.

Ways of organizing all of this. RELIGIOUS INSTITUTIONS.

metaphysics

epistemology

metaphysics

epistemology

value theory

metaphysics

epistemology

- Does God exist?
- If so, in what form? As a supernatural being, as identical with nature, as many disembodied spirits?

metaphysics

epistemology

- Does God exist?
- If so, in what form? As a supernatural being, as identical with nature, as many disembodied spirits?
- What does the existence of evil imply about the existence or nature of God or the gods?

metaphysics

epistemology

- Does God exist?
- If so, in what form? As a supernatural being, as identical with nature, as many disembodied spirits?
- What does the existence of evil imply about the existence or nature of God or the gods?
- Is the universe the result of deliberate planning or the result of the blind forces of nature that could easily have been otherwise?

metaphysics

epistemology

metaphysics

epistemology

value theory

• Can we know whether or not a God or gods exist?

metaphysics

epistemology

- Can we know whether or not a God or gods exist?
- Are appeals to faith to justify religious belief legitimate?

metaphysics

epistemology

- Can we know whether or not a God or gods exist?
- Are appeals to faith to justify religious belief legitimate?
- Are science and religion in conflict or are they compatible as two different ways of approaching reality?

metaphysics

epistemology

value theory

• What is the relation between religion and morality?

metaphysics

epistemology

- What is the relation between religion and morality?
- Is religion a purely private matter or does it have any role to play in public life?

metaphysics

epistemology

- What is the relation between religion and morality?
- Is religion a purely private matter or does it have any role to play in public life?
- Should parents be allowed to opt out of scientifically established medical treatments for their kids on religious grounds?

YES

NO

MAYBE

YES Theism is the general term for the belief in the existence of a God or gods.

MAYBE

YES	Theism is the general term for the belief in the existence of a God or gods.
MAYBE	 Monotheism: there is only one God, and that God is a being with "personhood," with thoughts, feelings, intentions, free will

YES	Theism is the general term for the belief in the existence of a God or gods.
MAYBE	 Monotheism: there is only one God, and that God is a being with "personhood," with thoughts, feelings, intentions, free will Polytheism: there are multiple gods often with many different personalities.

YES	Theism is the general term for the belief in the existence
NO	of a God or gods.
MAYBE	 Monotheism: there is only one God, and that God is a being with "personhood," with thoughts, feelings, intentions, free will
	 Polytheism: there are multiple gods often with many different personalities.
	 Pantheism: God is everywhere or in every thing.

YES NO

MAYBE

Note that actual religions don't always clearly fit these definitions.

YES NO MAYBE

Note that actual religions don't always clearly fit these definitions.

 Hinduism is polytheistic, but Krishna is often seen as the main "God" with many other divinities as Krishna's "avatars" or manifestations.

YES NO

MAYBE

Note that actual religions don't always clearly fit these definitions.

- Hinduism is polytheistic, but Krishna is often seen as the main "God" with many other divinities as Krishna's "avatars" or manifestations.
- Christianity claims that God is both unitary and has three separate "persons" -- Father, Son and Holy Spirit.

YES

NO

MAYBE

YES Atheism refers to the denial of the existence of God, the gods or a supernatural realm of spirits.

MAYBE

YFS

NO

MAYBE

Atheism refers to the denial of the existence of God, the gods or a supernatural realm of spirits.

It is sometimes, asserted that it it impossible to "prove a negative," or demonstrate that something does not exist or is not true.

But we do this all the time, whenever we show that the existence of something entails a contradiction, or is logically incompatible with other things we know to be true.

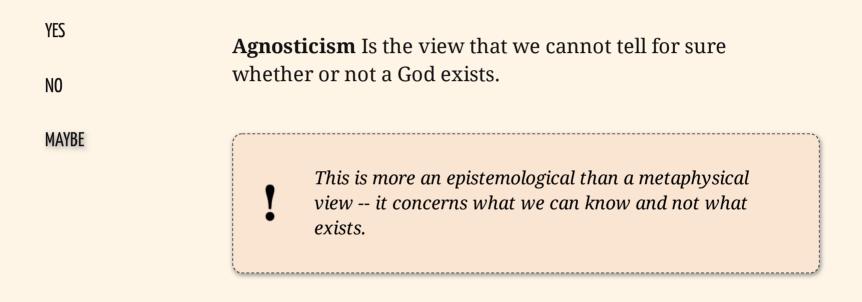

YES

NO

MAYBE

YES Agnosticism Is the view that we cannot tell for sure whether or not a God exists.

MAYBE

 YES
 Agnosticism Is the view that we cannot tell for sure whether or not a God exists.

 NO
 MAYBE

 This is more an epistemological than a metaphysical view -- it concerns what we can know and not what exists.

 • Buddhism might be considered an agnostic religion

 Buddhism might be considered an agnostic religion since it has many features of religion, yet often denies that metaphysical claims about the ultimate nature of reality matter.

"God is evident in basic facts about the world of our experience."

"God is evident in basic facts about the world of our experience."

Saint Thomas Aquinas 1225-1274 • Aquinas was an important figure in the history of the Catholic Church.

"God is evident in basic facts about the world of our experience."

- Aquinas was an important figure in the history of the Catholic Church.
- He combined the conceptual framework of Ancient Greek philosophy with Christianity, thus given definitive form to the medieval world-view of the Great Chain of Being, where everything in Nature has its place in a world ruled by God.

The Cosmological Argument

The Cosmological Argument

Saint Thomas Aquinas 1225-1274 Everything that exists has a cause.

The universe as a whole exists.

So the universe as a whole has a cause -- God.

The Cosmological Argument

Saint Thomas Aquinas 1225-1274 Everything that exists has a cause.

The universe as a whole exists.

So the universe as a whole has a cause -- God.

• The key idea here is that this universe exists and that specific things need specific causes. But must this cause be the God of Christianity?

Saint Anselm 1033-1101

"Reason alone can show us that God must exist."

Saint Anselm 1033-1101

"Reason alone can show us that God must exist."

Saint Anselm 1033-1101 Anselm was an early Medieval philosopher convinced of the power of human reason to make sense of things.

"Reason alone can show us that God must exist."

Saint Anselm 1033-1101

- Anselm was an early Medieval philosopher convinced of the power of human reason to make sense of things.
- His most famous argument is a negative argument that shows that God cannot, not exist.

The Ontological Argument

Saint Anselm 1033-1101

The Ontological Argument

Saint Anselm 1033-1101 We can imagine the existence of a perfect being.

But if such a being did not exist it would lack something and so be less than perfect.

Thus a perfect being must exist -- God.

The Ontological Argument

Saint Anselm 1033-1101

We can imagine the existence of a perfect being.

But if such a being did not exist it would lack something and so be less than perfect.

Thus a perfect being must exist -- God.

• Something seems fishy here, but it is hard to see what.

The Ontological Argument

Saint Anselm 1033-1101

We can imagine the existence of a perfect being.

But if such a being did not exist it would lack something and so be less than perfect.

Thus a perfect being must exist -- God.

• Something seems fishy here, but it is hard to see what.

• Can such abstract reasoning do more than just restate our original assumption that we can imagine such a being?

William Paley 1743-1805

"The hand of God is visible in the complexity of the natural world."

William Paley 1743-1805

"The hand of God is visible in the complexity of the natural world."

William Paley 1743-1805 William Paley was an Anglican minister whose "natural theology" was taken to be the best explanation for biological complexity until Darwin challenged it.

"The hand of God is visible in the complexity of the natural world."

William Paley 1743-1805

- William Paley was an Anglican minister whose "natural theology" was taken to be the best explanation for biological complexity until Darwin challenged it.
- His argument is still popular among Christian fundamentalists who use it to oppose evolution.

Paley's Watch

William Paley 1743-1805

Paley's Watch

William Paley 1743-1805 If you found a watch on the beach you'd be right to think it was not a product of chance but of design.

The organisms we "find" in nature are even more complex than a watch.

Thus a designer powerful enough to have designed biological organisms must exist -- God.

Paley's Watch

William Paley 1743-1805 If you found a watch on the beach you'd be right to think it was not a product of chance but of design.

The organisms we "find" in nature are even more complex than a watch.

Thus a designer powerful enough to have designed biological organisms must exist -- God.

 This argument fails to mention other possible explanations for biological complexity, like the "blind watchmaker" of evolution by natural selection.

- None of these arguments seem so convincing to modern readers.

- None of these arguments seem so convincing to modern readers.
- Perhaps the Eighteenth Century philosopher Immanuel Kant was right that these kinds of big metaphysical questions cannot be answered in any definite way.

- None of these arguments seem so convincing to modern readers.
- Perhaps the Eighteenth Century philosopher Immanuel Kant was right that these kinds of big metaphysical questions cannot be answered in any definite way.
- What then about appealing to faith as the basis of religious belief?

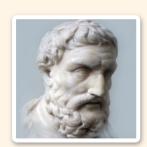

- None of these arguments seem so convincing to modern readers.
- Perhaps the Eighteenth Century philosopher Immanuel Kant was right that these kinds of big metaphysical questions cannot be answered in any definite way.
- What then about appealing to faith as the basis of religious belief?

Appeals to faith are a double-edged sword. If there are no reasons offered, only belief, we also have no reason to take such appeals seriously.

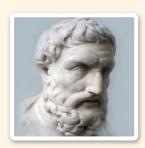

Epicurus 341-270 BCE

"The existence of evil proves that God does not exist."

Epicurus 341-270 BCE

"The existence of evil proves that God does not exist."

Epicurus 341-270 BCE Epicurus was a Greek philosopher who was skeptical of religion and advocated enjoying life to the fullest.

"The existence of evil proves that God does not exist."

- Epicurus was a Greek philosopher who was skeptical of religion and advocated enjoying life to the fullest.
- He argued against religious belief in an era when it was almost universally accepted.

The Argument from Evil

Epicurus 341-270 BCE

The Argument from Evil

Epicurus 341-270 BCE If there is an all-powerful, all-knowing and all-good God, then evil should not exist.

But evil does exist.

Thus such a God does not exist.

The Argument from Evil

Epicurus 341-270 BCE

If there is an all-powerful, all-knowing and all-good God, then evil should not exist.

But evil does exist.

Thus such a God does not exist.

• One typical response to this argument is to blame evil on human free will -- we would be at fault then, and not God.

The Argument from Evil

Epicurus 341-270 BCE

If there is an all-powerful, all-knowing and all-good God, then evil should not exist.

But evil does exist.

Thus such a God does not exist.

- One typical response to this argument is to blame evil on human free will -- we would be at fault then, and not God.
- Can this defense deal with "natural evils" like disease or natural disasters without blaming the victim?

Blaise Pascal 1623-1662

"We are all compelled to gamble."

Blaise Pascal 1623-1662

"We are all compelled to gamble."

Blaise Pascal 1623-1662 Blaise Pascal was deeply religious, but also a mathematician and gambler who laid the foundations of probability theory.

"We are all compelled to gamble."

Blaise Pascal 1623-1662

- Blaise Pascal was deeply religious, but also a mathematician and gambler who laid the foundations of probability theory.
- Pascal offers an argument in defense of belief in God that assumes that we cannot know for sure whether or not God exists.

Pascal's Wager

Blaise Pascal 1623-1662

Pascal's Wager

Blaise Pascal 1623-1662 There is no direct evidence for or against God's existence.

But the risk of not believing is far worse than that of believing.

Thus we should accept that God exists.

Pascal's Wager

Blaise Pascal 1623-1662 There is no direct evidence for or against God's existence.

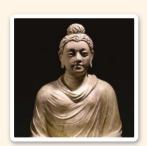

But the risk of not believing is far worse than that of believing.

Thus we should accept that God exists.

• This argument may show that we have a motive to believe -- to avoid punishment for unbelief if God turns out to exist -- but is that really a reason to think the conclusion is true?

"What we believe about ultimate questions is less important than how we live."

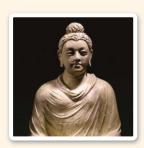

"What we believe about ultimate questions is less important than how we live."

Buddha 4th Century BCE Born Siddhartha Gautama, heir to a royal family, the founder of Buddhism sought a solution to the human suffering that inevitably arises from the impermanence of everything and our tendency to cling to things anyway.

"What we believe about ultimate questions is less important than how we live."

Buddha 4th Century BCE

- Born Siddhartha Gautama, heir to a royal family, the founder of Buddhism sought a solution to the human suffering that inevitably arises from the impermanence of everything and our tendency to cling to things anyway.
- Buddhism spread throughout Asia and now takes a multitude of forms, but all emphasize self-discipline and not being too attached to things in the world.

The Parable of the Arrow

The Parable of the Arrow

Buddha 4th Century BCE Arguing about God, the universe and the soul is like arguing about who exactly just shot you with an arrow and why.

It's more important to pull the arrow out.

That's what religion too should be about, addressing our suffering.

The Parable of the Arrow

Buddha 4th Century BCE Arguing about God, the universe and the soul is like arguing about who exactly just shot you with an arrow and why.

It's more important to pull the arrow out.

That's what religion too should be about, addressing our suffering.

• Is Buddhism even a religion or is it a philosophy, or agnostic spiritual and ethical system?

Find out more

Anselm and the Argument for God: Hank Green explores Anselm's ontological argument in this episode of The Crash Course.

Aquinas and the Cosmological Arguments: more from the Crash Course, this time dealing with St. Thomas Aquinas' "five ways" to establish the existence of God.

Religion Facts: this is a great website for exploring the many varieties of religion from around the world and throughout history.

Philosophy of Religion: a comprehensive overview of the major issues in this sub-field of philosophy from the Internet Encyclopedia of Philosophy.

Credits

Built with:

Rstudio

xarignan html presentation framework

Photos by:

Peter H and Valter Cirillo at Pixabay

download this presentation or print it editorial suggestions and comments: requires a (free) GitHub account.